The board would gladly have extended the usual hospitality to officers, Start presidents and federation secretaries had it not received instructions to the contrary from the General Federation Board. This is due to the fact that the General Fedis due to the fact that the General Fed-eration is becoming so large that few cities would be able to entertain it if such extended hospitality were expected, and it has been thought whe to inaugurate the change this year in St. Louis.

"The Local Riemial Board, however, de-cided to entertain the honorary members of the G. F. W. C. and the distinguished speakers on the evening programmes, and now places at their disposal the hospitality of many of cur homes.

A word as to admissions: While the day sessions will be restricted to ticket admissions, all possible provision will be made for visitors not officially entitled to seats. In the evening only the boxes will be reserved. The entire house will be open without cards or tickets, and regardless of club affiliations. The public will be scated as arriving. No out-of-town visitor need fear for opportunity, and at the Louisiana Purchase Day ceremonies at the Fair grounds the accommodations will be practically limitless.

With this bulletin the Press Committee completes the publicity work for the seventh biennial. The faithful attention involving much labor, given by the local club women to the arrangements for the comfort and survice of the visitors will be fully rewarded by a large participation by club women, other than delegates, who are heartly invited. In addition to the farticular offerings of the blennial, it may not be amiss to say a word of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. In some quarters club women announce the intention to defer for a more complete Fair the proposed visit to St. Louis. In our opinion agen is a mistake.

ino delay or discomfort, the crowds, which on opening day was 185.00, was handled to the surprised satisfaction of all.

The hotel accommodations are ample. Fine rooms in all the best localities can be secured for $1 per flay. It is our honest opinion that any club woman who can be with us during our convention and falls to come, believing a later date will allow greater pleasure, will make a mistake.

With a cordial invitation from each and every St. Louis club woman to each and every member of the G. F. L. W. C., we abandon the printed sheet and await the face-to-face welcome.

The last meeting of the Wednesday Club was the inauguration meeting, unusual in one respect, at least, and that is that only two changes occur in the list of officers, as all the others have been re-elected. Mrs. E. W. LaBraume became the second vice president and Mrs. Charles Giddehaus corresponding secretary. The chief speech was by Mrs. Fischel, who remains president for a second term; Mrs. John Green stepped out of the vice presidency with a speech marked by her usual cheerfulness and Mrs. John Greene retired from the corresponding secretary's deek with well-chosen words.

An important part of the meeting was the detailed report of the Local Biennial Board by its president, Mrs. Moore, and by the chairmen of the subcommittee of the L. B. B. The arrangements that have been made for the success and comfort of the complete that have been made for the success and comfort of the complete desirable security is completed. TRADE HAS GROWN RAPIDLY.

One Shoe Factory Has Done Much o Promote Industry.

That the "star of empire does take its westward way" is demonstrated by one of the World's Fair exhibits. In this exhibit the course of a piece of raw leather hibit the course of a piece of raw leather is shown until it is turned out in the finished shoe of commerce.

The course of the "star of empire" is demonstrated when it is remembered that at one time the New England States had the shoe business of America. Now St. Louis has what is believed is the larger share of it. No industry in the upbuilding of the commercial West has shown greater development than has the trade of some of the Western dealers and manufacturers.

of the Western dealers and manufacturers.

An instance of the extent of some of the factories of St. Louis may be learned from the fact that the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Company last year produced between 25,000 and 25,600 pairs of fine shoes every working day of the year. And that these shoes are sold in stores from whose front porch the city of Boston is visible
is a further evidence of their worth.
These shoes, the "Star Brand," are worn
in all parts of the country, even in effets Boston. Last year the sales of this company increased 25,000,000 over the sales of the preceding year. This was the largest yearly gain ever made by a shoe largest yearly gain ever made by a shoe largest yearly gain ever made by a shoe house, and the company is, accordingly proud. The total sales last year of this firm were $6,000,000.
